

SUMMARY

I own both the product and the story that sells it.

At Adobe, I took a service everyone used but no one measured, typography, and proved it drove revenue, retention, and platform growth. I led product strategy and marketing for a 75-person cross-functional organization: executive approval of the vision and strategy seven years running, adoption across 12 flagship apps, each secured by persuading teams I didn't manage, and a roadmap I pivoted to the AI era.

My playbook goes anywhere: find the undervalued asset, prove its worth, and scale it through influence.

HIGHLIGHTS

- Drove the brand and business-model transformation of Typekit, an acquired service, into a core Adobe membership benefit. Recognized an activation-limit removal as the rebrand moment and grew monthly active users (MAU) 40% in year one with zero font vendor or intellectual property partner attrition.
- Proved typography drives revenue. Redesigned Adobe Express font recommendations to lift free-to-paid conversion +186% (0.5% → 1.42%), making it one of Express's top premium drivers.
- Quantified the retention case for typography. A 2025 causal analysis of 3.25M Creative Cloud Complete (all-app) subscribers showed that those who adopted Adobe Fonts churned 66% less the following month.
- Launched Adobe's largest content-licensing partnership in five years (Monotype and Microsoft). Spotted the opportunity in user drop-off data and synchronized the go-to-market (GTM) strategy with Adobe MAX London, the company's premier European creativity conference, resulting in a rapid baseline adoption of 1.2 million active users within weeks of launch.
- Consolidated two separate text-rendering systems, the software that draws type inside each app, into one platform and scaled it across 12 flagship apps. It serves 15M monthly active users today.
- Defined Adobe's typography strategy for the AI era, shipping generative text edit in Firefly Boards, Adobe's AI-powered infinite canvas, at Adobe MAX 2025.

Director, Product Management

Jun 2023 – Feb 2026

ADOBE · SEATTLE, WA

First product director for the fonts & typography business, a service used across every product in Adobe's $17.65B Digital Media segment. Led 6 product managers and set direction for a 75-person cross-functional organization.

- Shipped a usage-based royalty model, saving $1M in year-one foundry royalties with zero user backlash.

Director, Product Management — CONTINUED

- Grew Adobe Fonts to 12M+ MAU, 3× the rate of Creative Cloud.
- Ran the Adobe Fonts website as a funnel and product lab, lifting free-account signups +36% year over year.

Group Manager, Product & Product Marketing Mar 2019 – Jun 2023

ADOBE · SEATTLE, WA

Pitched for and won expanded leadership over both product strategy and product marketing for the fonts & typography business. Led a team of 8 and presented strategy to the senior vice president annually; a senior director of marketing called it the best annual strategy presentation they had ever seen.

- Won executive approval for the usage-based royalty model and specified the usage logging across every app.
- Shipped the Adobe Fonts platform across Adobe.com and 12 Creative Cloud apps.
- Rebuilt 3 teams and grew the people on them, promoting a support manager to PM, a support person to community manager, and a content hire into the producer behind one of Adobe's top livestream series.

Group Product Marketing Manager Mar 2016 – Mar 2019

ADOBE · SEATTLE, WA

Led marketing, customer experience, and go-to-market for the fonts & typography business; team grew to 8.

- Initiated and drove the Typekit → Adobe Fonts rebrand: +40% MAU year one, zero font vendor or intellectual property partner attrition.
- Quantified the retention case: a 2019 causal analysis showed all-app subscribers who used Adobe Fonts churned 42% less the following month.
- Created the marketing behind Adobe's gender-inclusive emoji advocacy (Forbes, MIT Technology Review, Wired, Slate, and more).

Senior Product Marketing Manager Jan 2012 – Mar 2016

ADOBE · SAN JOSE, CA

Sole senior marketer for the fonts & typography business after the acquisition of a popular web font service (Typekit); deployed a $1M budget across PR, partnerships, and Adobe MAX.

- Built go-to-market and press strategy for Source Han Sans, the first open-source typeface spanning Chinese, Japanese, and Korean scripts, addressing 1.5 billion users; won the naming case in a five-company negotiation.
- Created, funded, and led the Adobe Originals 25th Anniversary campaign, anchored by the open-source launch of Source Serif.
- Designed Typekit's community-driven marketing model and produced immersive launch microsites.

Quality Engineer → Lead Quality Engineer → Senior Program Manager Jul 2002 – Jan 2012

ADOBE · SAN JOSE, CA

Joined as employee ~6,000 and shipped releases for Photoshop, Illustrator, InDesign, and Acrobat. A decade in the fonts & typography business before I marketed it; foundries and engineers knew my work before I pitched them.
